“ I was lucky enough to care for Chris for about a year-and-a-half when he attended day habilitation with Community alternatives a few years ago. Now don't go telling on me, but he was my favorite person! He always smiled at me and I could tell in his eyes every day that he was happy to see me. Some people might have had a problem with what it took to assist Chris but it never bothered me. Caring for Chris taught me that it doesn't matter what difficulties there may be in caring for an individual, if you know them as a fellow human who just needs some help and is relying on you to help them with Basics other people take for granted like the ability to eat or drink or be clean, to just be like everyone else. Then assisting someone in this endeavor is as simple as caring for my own children. It made me extra careful to maintain his dignity and respect and even cluck and worry over him as one of my own. I'm sure I drove the nurse crazy with my questions and insistence on calling her over every little thing that he had going on at any point. To his mother, I'd like to say that I'm sorry I never got the chance to meet you. And your son would light up a room. Everyone who would come in to our area would come to him first to talk to him and get a smile. a huge Christopher Graves smile from ear-to-ear. As Chris is more of a thinker than a talker I was left to run, conversation I found I would often sing to Christopher throughout the day about what was going on or what we were doing and he would put his hands up and look over at me with that smile every time. Knowing this man made me a better person and a more compassionate and caring human being in too many ways to count. He made me realize there was happiness to be found even in places that most people would be hard pressed to imagine that it could be. I am very grateful for the chance to have known him and I will miss him terribly. My deepest condolences to you, his family on this sad day. But thank you ever so much for the chance to know Chris.

“ Oh how I remember Chris many years ago and the great mother he had, She was so proud of her family and always ready to give a helping hand to other . Ellie and family my heart breaks for you just want you to know I am with you at heart today and know Chris has already met Deb my daughter in the land of gold.. As Deb passed on she described the gates of heaven to us there were children on the steps singing and she sang with them as she entered the gates of heaven we heard all this as she was passing on. God is good. He sent us comfort in our time of need. Also every day she is by our side when we need her most. Rest assured that Chris is in good hands and pain free. I am so sorry for the lost Ellie and family as I am one that saw all of grow up and Ellie is like my mom also, She changed my life too. Prayers coming your way today Love to the family
